About me

Hi, i'm James. Im a designer from belfast with a love for all things creative. Im currently a Student at Ulster University studying Interaction design.

When i'm not designing, I spend most of my free time out with friends, listening to music or creating dotwork art for my instagram page, @thatguywhodots.

Work

Vault Music

2019 - present

Vault music is a belfast based promotion company that is heavily involved with the local music scene. They put on shows giving smaller bands a chance to gain some recognition.

The company approached me to create their logo aswell as their branding. I enjoyed the project so much that I continue to work with vault music, creating all the posters for their events.

Home Bargains

2017 - present

This is a part time job I have to help me through Uni. This role has allowed me develope my skills when it comes to interacting with the general public aswell as further increaseing my teamwork skills.

Liquid Colour Design

2014 - 2015

Liquid Colour Design is a custom paint shop and studio. I originally worked here as part of a placement program but stayed on for a few months after out of an interest in learning more about design.

While working at Liquid colour design, I was responsible with the preparation of racing helmets for painting. This position taught me alot about patience and concentration.
